Poetry.

In the Tunnel.

Riding up from Bangor,
On the Pullman train,
From a six weeks shooting
In the woods of Maine,
Quite extensive whiskers,
Beard, mustache as well,
Sat a "student feller,"
Tall, and fine, and swell.

Empty seat behind him,
No one at his side;
To a pleasant station
Now the train doth glide,
Enter aged couple,
Take the hinder seat;
Enter gentle maiden,
Beautiful, petite.

Blushingly she falters;
"Is this seat engaged?"
(See the aged couple Properly enraged,)
Student, quite ecstatic,
Sees her ticket's "through;"
Thinks of the long tunnel—
Knows what he will do.

So they sit and chatter
While the cinders fly,
Till that "student feller"
Gets one in his eye;
And the gentle maiden
Quickly turns about—
"May I, if you please, sir,
Try to get it out?"

Happy "student fellow"
Feels a dainty touch;
Hears a gentle whisper,—
"Does it hurt you much?"
Fizz, ding, dong, a moment
In the tunnel quite,
And a glorious darkness
Black as Egypt's night.

* * * * * * *

Out into the daylight
Darts the Pullman train;
Student's beaver ruffled
Just the merest grain;
Maiden's hair is tumbled,
And there soon appeared
Cunning little curl-ring
Caught in Student's beard.

Selected Story.

Waiting for the Train.

"Waiting for the train, ma'am?"

"Yes, sir."

He growled. I smiled.

"Confound 'em! They're always late!" he growled again.

Of course, I, too, confounded them in my heart of hearts; but, being a woman, I hid my sorrows in my breast, and endured heroically.

Heroically! If there isn't heroism in waiting patiently for a train three hours over due—in enduring the smell of tobacco; the profanity of rough men; the gas from the great monster of a coal stove that always dwells in waiting rooms; in suffering the pangs of hunger; in dying of headache and heartache—in knowing that your complexion is begrimed by cinders; that your chignon is coming down, and your crimps straightening out; that your bonnet is awry; that your hands are dirty; that you present upon the whole, a woefully battered appearance which is painfully suggestive of having been out over night, and not getting home in the morning—if it be, and to know all this, and still to smile, and smile and be amiable, is not heroism, pray what is?

I had been there three mortal hours. I had eaten all my sandwiches, and read all my newspapers; moreover, I had committed to memory all the posters on the walls. I had composed several cantos of poetry, and a tragedy deep and bloody enough to thrill the hardest heart.

It was only a small effort more in the same direction to look benignly on the old man, and even attempt consolation.

"I dare say the train will be here soon now," I said, pleasantly.

He turned his face toward me, and snarled. In so doing he showed an array of long, yellow, pointed teeth. It was not an agreeable spectacle. And now that I noticed it, his wizened, wrinkled, old face—his narrow, cold, leaden eyes, which could hardly light up, I fancied, but at the impulse of anger—his grizzled, shaggy beard and slouching figure, made up a tout ensemble far from prepossessing.

"You dare say!" he growled. "What do you know about it? They'll come when it's too late. The deuce take 'em."

He scowled and muttered, and bit his finger nails.

"If you were my father, old fellow," I thought, "I should run away, or drown myself."

But he wasn't, most fortunately; and so I felt a curious desire to poke him up a little—make him show his teeth and growl, like the ugly old bear that he was.

"You seem to be in a hurry to go on," I said

"In a deuce of a hurry ma'am," he snapped out, very shortly.

I looked at him, wondering why. He turned upon me suddenly.

"See here! you look like a sensible person. I'm tempted to tell you my errand. Ah! you look curious now. After all, perhaps, you'll sympathize with that pair of young fools," he sneered.

"I must say, sir, that I think there's more excuse for a young fool than an old one," I said, quietly.

He bounded out of his chair, went to the door, opened it, and slammed it behind him.

"For mercy's sake, ma'am!"

This was the little, red, fat station master. He was engaged in feeding with fuel the monster of a stove I have mentioned, and he paused in his work, and surveyed me with open eyed wonder.

"What have I done?" I asked laughing.

"Done! done!" he repeated, and he swung his hands, and chuckled alarmingly. "Why, there ain't a man, woman, or child who ever heard of him that would dare to say so much to him. Why, that's Old Grinder!"

"Old Grinder? Is it?"

"Old Grinder, ma'am. I reckon you've heard of him?" in a tone which implied that to not know Old Grinder would be to argue one's self unknown.

"Oh, yes! I had heard of Old Grinder. Of course I had. Wasn't he a miserly, cruel old fellow, and hadn't he a dear, sweet little blossom of a daughter called Nannie—I had seen her once, and never should I forget the tender, patient, sorrowful face—and wasn't there something about a lover?"

The station master smiled. He was a man who dearly loved a dish of gossip; and I was a woman, curious and sympathetic. He told me the story then. Parts of it I knew, for I had spent long, idle summers in Old Grinder's close neighborhood.

He was the richest old curmudgeon in all the country round. There was a time when he was not called Old Grinder, but John Oakley, which was his real name; and in those days he won a fair, gentle woman, who was drawn to him by heaven knows what attraction, invisible to all eyes except hers.

Poor, pretty Nannie Oakley lived through a few pale years of wedded life, and then died, leaving behind her another Nannie, her daughter. This girl was of different metal from her mother. The rougher metal of the father, modified by her mother's gentleness, bloomed anew in a sweeter, more beautiful form. Nannie was full of spirit, but tender as a dove; vivacious and graceful at once, with rare imagination and rare faculty.

Meahwhile, as Nannie grew up, her father grew old, grew cross, grew miserly, grew unendurable and exacting to an intolerable degree. Prudence in youth is apt to degenerate into parsimony in old age. When Nannie was fifteen, she was left to go barefooted, left without any instruction whatever. She grew up as innocent and as wild as any young savage of the woods.

The situation had its elements of romance. A pure, sweet, blithe young girl imprisoned in a rickety old house, and tyrannized over by a Nero among men! No doubt she cast longing eyes outward into the great, unknown, wonderful world—the world full of all beautiful possibilities—the world which a young girl's imagination explores over and over with a new delight.

No doubt she had dreamed—of the tenderness of love, the sweetness of friendship, of a home full of all gracious happiness. And perhaps sometimes her hope forsook her, and her courage died. For the people who saw her, said that at last she got the look of a patient, suffering creature in her eyes—that her beauty grew into such pathos that it touched all hearts.

But at last, and just in time, the fairy prince came.

He came this time in the humble guise of a clerk—a youth of two-and-twenty, who bent his young back, and strained his young bright eyes over the almost inextricable tangle into which John Oakley's ignorance of new ways, his penuriousness and greed had precipitated his affairs.

Richard Sherman brought order out of this chaos, and the result came in profits which began to pour in.

Oakley was glad, and grateful.

"I'll raise your salary next year. I'll give you—"

And he named a sum at which the young man colored, but not with pleasure.

"I can't keep a wife, sir, on that sum."

"A wife!" thundered the old man. "What do you want of a wife, you young idiot?"

Richard got down from his desk.

"I think, Mr. Oakley, we had better part. I can command twice my present salary elsewhere easily. I should not have stayed with you so long, if it hadn't been for your daughter."

It was all out now.

John Oakley's face grew purple with rage. He raved—he swore. At last, as the readiest way to punish the young man, he poured out his rage upon Nannie.

Imagine the poor girl's torture—how she was driven from misery to despair, till at last, one bitter winter's night, she fled from the place she had called home, with a woman's trust in his love. They had got upon the railway at the nearest station, and in any event would have two hours' start of the old man. Now, thanks to some inexplicable delay, there would be five.

"I tell you, miss," said the station master, concluding his story, "It's the most blessedest Providence that ever happened. They'll get the knot tied before the old man overtakes 'em."

I brightened up. It was for this I had suffered the tedium of waiting—for this I had eaten cold bread and butter, and gone without a cup of tea for twelve hours! My sufferings were nothing. I could have danced and sung songs. The sight of John Oakley trudging up and down the platform, thrashing his arms about in impatient anger, afforded me exquisite satisfaction.

"May the train be delayed," I prayed in my heart, "till the lovers are united past the power of John Oakley to separate them."

The minutes flew all too fast now.

The hours chased each other. And presently, to my great sorrow, the train came.

I got a seat in sight of John Oakley. Somehow I got a premonition that I was called to special service in Nannie's behalf.

The train sped on; the white winter's day brightened into a golden close.

By and-bye we ran into a little station. Out from the waiting-room came a tall, manly fellow, leading a slight figure, wrapped in a waterproof. In passing the door the hood slipped aside and I saw her face. Ah, me! how startled I was! For I knew that face at once—spirituelle and piquant, full of life and fire, yet so feminine and sweet!

Now, what malign fate had sent them here?

The old man was nodding his head upon his breast. Presently I saw the young man start, and in an instant Nannie uttered a suppressed shriek.

I hastily rose and went toward them.

"You are Richard Sherman, and this is Nannie?"

He nodded—looked in my face with frank, true eyes.

I slipped my hand under the waterproof and clasped her's warmly.

"Keep your face concealed in the hood, my dear," I whispered. "Mr Sherman, you had better draw your muffler up."

He obeyed mechanically. He was momentarily bewildered, but only for a moment.

"How do you happen to be here?" I asked, distressed.

"We stopped to throw him off the scent. We thought he would follow in the three o'clock train, and that we could take the six o'clock with safety. We knew he would rush straight through town, believing us to be gone West."

"Oh, dear, how unlucky! This is the three o'clock train. It was delayed three hours."

Richard glanced over at his enemy, drowsing opposite.

"You had better go straight to town now. You will easily elude him. Perhaps I can help you."

He thanked me by a grateful look, and I crept back to my place.

The train sped on. The darkness deepened. Lights flashed out from happy homes as we passed them. We saw a table spread for tea; a mother suckling her babe while shewaited for its father to come home.

I wonder they did not touch his heart. I wonder no memory of the wife hid away under the violets for so many years came to soften him; that no tender reluctance to mar his sweet young daughter's life grew up in his soul.

At last, with a rush and a roar, we swept into the station.

The crowd passed out. I put myself between John Oakley and the lovers. I saw them alight. Somebody pushed by, and, somehow, Nannie got separated from Richard.

"Nannie!" I heard him say, in a quick tone of alarm.

John Oakley heard it too. He pushed by me. The bright light in the station fell upon them.

"By heaven, there they are!" he muttered, exultantly.

He flung himself out. Richard saw his danger. In an instant he had put Nannie into a carriage and sprung after her. He gave an under order his breath. The driver mounted the box.

"Stop! stop!" shouted the infuriated old man,

The driver laughed significantly, and drove off. As the carriage turned into the stream of light, old Grinder's sharp eyes saw the name on the panel.

He turned, blundering upon me in the dark, just as I had discovered my own carriage in waiting.

He seized its door.

"To the Clarenden House, as fast as you can go!" he roared.

The coachman started.

"It is all right," I whispered; "only drive home, and by the longest way."

My good Christie told me afterward that he thought I was bringing home some lunatic friend from the asylum. Fortunately he was that rare servant who obeys without question, and so he quietly put me in.

It was not a pleasant situation. The old man growled at my entrance; he muttered to himself; he seemed, indeed, very much like a maniac.

Christie drove off through lighted streets, through dark alleys, through lighted streets again. Oakley began to be impatient. We came upon a wide, open road. We were bowling over it in fine style, when he turned upon me suddenly. In the chance light from the street lamp his face was frightful.

"I started to go to the Clarenden House. Where are we?" he said fiercely.

"You are in my private carriage, sir, on your way to my residence at Brookside."

"The——"

I won't repeat the words he used. When his rage was partly spent, he howled:

"Let me get out—let me get out, I say!"

"You shall get out if you wish, Mr. Oakley. But as we are already half way to Brookside, I think you had better go on. My husband will take you back in the carriage. You will reach the Clarenden thus sooner than you can by walking."

He swore, but he submitted. Presently he became maudlin, talked about conspiracies and ingratitude, and otherwise entertained me in fine style till Christie drove up to my own gate. Then I ran up the steps into arms that waited for and welcomed me.

In a breath I told the story.

"And, oh, Bertie, you must go back with him; but please don't go as quick as you can."

Bertie laughed, put on his great coat leisurely, lighted his cigar, kissed me, and went.

I took out my watch, looked at it, and sighed. It would be an hour and a half, perhaps two hours, before I could look for him back.

I felt myself quite a saint. Had I not sent away my own husband, whom I had not seen for a fortnight, for the sake of those two lovers?

Of course I ought to have been sustained by a consciousness of well doing, but I wasn't. The time dragged heavily. To be sure, it was sweet to be home again, to feed my paroquet, and tease the little white kitten; to hear the servants say how they missed me, and how master had moped. But I wanted Bertie, and it was a good two hours before he came.

I ran down to meet him. He came in powdered all over with fresh fallen snow.

"We shall have sleighing," he said, shaking off a white cloud. "Well, how has my little woman been?" looking down at me with bright, happy eyes.

I forgot my day's adventures at that minute, forgot the long hours I had waited for the train.

"Nannie is such a pretty girl!" said Bertie.

"Oh, never mind that! Only tell me—did they get off? and what did Mr. Oakley say? and where did you leave him?"

"They got off, my lady. We drove to the Clarendon. Mr. Oakley thundered at the clerk. That gentlemanly person opened his book and smiled, as he pointed to an entry—'Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sherman. They left ten minutes since, in the owl train,' he said blandly."

"And Mr. Oakley?" I asked, breathlessly.

"Raved, of course. I expostulated. Finally he cooled down, bought a homeward ticket, and I left him 'Waiting for the train.'"

Miscellaneous.

Ideals of Hospitality.

The highest ideals of hospitality we have are drawn from the Arabs. You know how many charming tales are told in that country of their devotion to the manners of hosbitality. The story of the Arab who cooked for the messenger of the Sultan in the house which the Sultan's messenger had been told to beg, but had not told his errand, and so the purposes of both were defeated; another story of an Arab is told in this way: "We had assembled for the first time to feast and to pass the night with our host. We a joyous party. His son had charmed us the day before with his frank Manner—his father doted on him, and I, addressing him, asked where the son now was. The Arab replied "he sleeps." The next morning, after the prayer of the Fejjah, when we were thinkind of leaving, he said, "my friends, I have tried to make you happy, and now I have come to ask of you a testimony of your kindness; when you asked me last night for my son he had just killed himself by falling from the top of a terrace, but that I might not disturb your eujoyment of the evening and the gayety of the feast I contained my grief and silence the cries of my wife, now I entreat you to assist at the berrial of my son, joining your prayers to mine."

This force of character overcame us, and we went religiously to the interment of the poor child.

The Political Field.

THE ANTI-GRANT REPUBLICAN LEADERS AND THEIR BUDGET OF GRIEVANCES.—THE DRIFT OF OUR POLITICAL PARTIES.

A bevy of malcontents and "soreheads" in the camp of the party in power is no new thing under the sun. We have had them, more or less, under almost every Administration from Washington down. Under Gen. Jackson there was a remarkably abundant corps; but Old Hickory's short method of dealing with soreheads was very effective and satisfactory. Calhoun and his Southern malcontents, however, were at last too much for Van Buren. They killed him off and they ruined poor Pierce and Buchanan. "Honest Old Abe Lincoln" had a whole Cabinet of Presidential rivals and hostile intriguers; but he was a shrewd diplomat with hostile conspirators, and so quietly shelved them all that even the Chief Justice to this day has not discovered how it was done. General Grant, in his turn, in honest endeavors to satisfy the country in the administration of the affairs of his great office, has raised up a considerable number of disappointed, disaffected and plotting, hostile politicians. Conspicuous among the leaders and trumpeters of these anti-Grant Republicans are Senators Sumner, Fenton, Trumbull and Carl Schurz, Governor Gratz Brown, of Missouri, and Mr. Greeley, "our later Franklin." These men all have one common object—the defeat of General Grant for the Presidential succession. But what is their budget of grievance? Let us see.

Beginning with Mr. Sumner, his case against General Grant is as decisive as was the split between Calhoun and Jackson. First of all, his friend, Mr. Motley, as our Minister at London, chose rather to follow the advice of Mr. Sumner on those Alabama claims than the instructions of Mr. Fish. So Mr. Motley was recalled, "and that's the way the fray began." Mr. Sumner for this personal offence was bound to have satisfaction. Hence his terrible onslaughts upon the Administration in reference to the St. Domingo annexation scheme. Next this hot quarrel cut off all personal communications between Mr. Sumner, even as Chairman on Foreign Relations in the Senate, and the Department of State; and, as this condition of things was simply intolerable, the Senate itself settled the difficulty by removing Mr. Sumner and by putting a chairman in his place who had no objection to confer in person with Mr. Fish on our foreign affairs. This, then, is the case of Mr. Sumner and his budget of grievances. He accordingly desires of all things the defeat of Gen. Grant as a candidate for another Presidential term. "Sic," says Sam Slick, "is human nater."

Mr. Fenton aspired to and expected the control of the spoils and plunder of the New York Custom House, and, failing in this expectation, and outraged beyond endurance in seeing his colleague, the amiable Conkling, with "Tom Murphy," master of the situation, what else was left to the sorely offended Fenton but revenge against Grant, Conkling, Murphy and all concerned? Is this, then, a small matter? Have we not seen that in managing the New York Republican party Mr. Fenton, without the spoils of the Custom House, can do nothing? And is this not exactly the case with Mr. Greeley, as Mr. Fenton's right bower? Of course, then, it is perfectly clear to Mr. Fenton that the salvation of the country requires the defeat of Gen. Grant; and, of course, Mr. Greeley is convinced that, unless we reduce General Grant to one term, the country will be ruined, and every man in New York will have to "go out West and buy a farm."

Mr. Trumbull's grievances date back to Andy Johnson's impeachment. This gentleman from Illinois was one of the seven Republican Senators whose votes on the impeachment resolutions saved poor Johnson, and he is the last of the seven left in the Senate. General Grant played a different role in that impeachment, and from that day to this Trumbull, to the eyes of Grant and the great body of the impeaching Republican, has been

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE GROWING IMPORTANCE OF EASTERN CAROLINA.

Time was when this section of North Carolina was considered an unimportant and out of the way place. But thanks to Yankee enterprise and the hearty co-operation of intelligent and progressive natives, it is not only getting to be celebrated as a genial and growing country, but its prospects are improving. We say growing, for though the improvement has been rapid the end is not yet, and we may finally hope that what it is now is only the earnest of what its future will be. We look forward to the time when in point of wealth, culture and influence it shall rank amongst the most prosperous and popular sections of the South.

As to our commerce it is yet carried on by means of steam and sail vessels. It will not long be confined to these. Its rapid increase is demanding rail roads. These are in contemplation and will be built. When this is done not only will our agricultural and commercial interests improve but Factories will spring up which will add materially to our wealth.

Our main dependence is and must be Agriculture, because for that more than anything else is our soil and climate adapted. The soil is various, embracing almost every kind, from the stiffest clay to the lightest sand.

The climate is unsurpassed, as a remark-ably fine combination of heat and cold. These make it possible to immunize from extremes of heat and cold, and place them in the form most favorable for agriculture.

Fruit is being planted extensively, and for most varieties no soil is better adapted than ours. The apple, the peach, the pear, the grape, the strawberry—in short nearly all kinds of fruit do well here. Properly attended to they can be made very profitable. The raising of early vegetables—potatoes, peas, beans, onions, etc.—is attracting attention as it is found as they can be produced two weeks earlier here than at any point immediately accessible to the Baltimore, Philadelphia or New York market.

The manufacturing interests are also beginning to attract attention. Within the past few years a number of saw mills have been established in different parts of the section, and the lumber trade is rapidly increasing. Shingles, staves, heading, etc., are also manufactured to a considerable extent. Tanneries, for the manufacture of leather, are also in operation, and the business is said to be profitable. Cotton factories are also in contemplation, and the time is not far distant when they will be in operation. Indeed, the manufacturing interests of Eastern Carolina are only limited by the want of capital and enterprise.

The fisheries are also attracting attention. Within the past few years a number of companies have been formed for the purpose of engaging in the business, and the result has been highly satisfactory. Fish, oysters, crabs, terrapin, etc., are found in great abundance in the waters of Eastern Carolina, and the business of catching and packing them for shipment is becoming a very important one. Under a suspension of the rules the following resolutions were introduced and passed:

In the House on the 6th inst., in the Senate a bill to incorporate the Beech Swamp Canal and Navigation Co., passed its several readings and was ordered to be enrolled.

Local and Personal.

☞ Look out for our next issue.!!!

☞ Several articles prepared for this issue are crowded out.

☞ A valuable property in Currituck county is advertised for lease or sale.

☞ Beginning to put in an appearance—Shad and Herring. Let 'em come.

☞ Our Washington letter failed to reach us in time time this week.

☞ Among the arrivals since our last are C. A. REIMENSNYDER, Esq., of Sunbury, Pa., and W. GREEN, of Wellsboro, Pa.

☞ A correspondent from Belvidere suggests the name of Hon. J. W. ALBERTSON for Congress. Mr. ALBERTSON is a good man and would make an able Representative.

☞ The Sheriff publishes a list of the delinquent tax payers in Pasquotank county. Those interested would do well to read his notice and act accordingly, as he evidently means "business."

☞ We can supply the following Magazines: The Galaxy, Author's Magazine, The Lady's Friend, Demorest's Lady's Magazine, The Sunday Magazine, Littell's Living Age, etc., at publisher's prices.

☞ On Thursday, Friday and Saturday last we had one of the most severe continued North-East storms known in this section for years. Further North it was a cold and heavy snow storm.

☞ Our Devil thinks people ought to quit making sport of the old woman who kissed her cow when there are so many young ones continually kissing great calves! He says he has no reference to the first person singular.

☞ In our last issue we alluded to the serious illness of our esteemed young townsman RICHARD H. LEIGH. In this it becomes our painful duty to chronicle his death, which occurred on Friday evening last. He was a young man of considerable promise. His disease was Pneumonia.

☞ The newspaper is to the people what a sign-board is to the traveler. It tells who is in business and where to trade as the sign board tells the name of the place and direction. Then, if you want people to buy of you tell them through the paper where you stay and what you have.

☞ Our "Man about Town" reports that he met a drinkest the other day on one of our prominent streets whose proboscis would make an excellent lamp for a signal tower on a rail-way line. It showed red, white, and blue by turns. Is it possible that the consumption of bad whiskey is on the increase?

☞ There are rumors of more of our young bachelor friends preparing to join our Benedictine band. This is right, for of a verity we can declare that "it is not good for man to be alone." As for the fair and accomplished daughters of Eve who are about to be led to Hymen's altar, they'll soon be happy singing of the blessings of "——the ties that bind us."

☞ The following relic of "ye days that are gone" was handed us by our kind friend GEO. W. BELL, having found it among some old papers.

Elizabeth City, Nov. 4th, 1833.

Received of William Glover the sum of Three Hundred and seventy-five dollars for the purchase of a Negro Girl named Harriet, aged fifteen years, this day sold to him; the right and title to which Slave I hereby warrant and defend against the claim or claims of all persons, whatsoever; and I likewise warrant the above Slave to be healthy and sound in all respects whatever, and subject to no bodily infirmity.

Jesse L. Pool, Seal.

☞ The time has come when all the thoroughfares of our City should be paved. Some of them, during wet weather, are in a filthy condition—a burning shame to the enterprise, public spirit and good taste of our people. Oh for the spirit of Improvement that will mend the ways of Elizabeth City in this particular, that our wives and daughters and sweet hearts—God bless them all—may not each time they attempt a promenade, or a call, or to do a little shopping, be obliged to realize the ordeal of Dirt, ladies, dirt! dirt!

Trail it along, ladies,
In the tail of your skirt.

☞ It was a cruel joke—that played on our neighbor of the Economist, by a couple of wags of our town. The other morning, bright and early, they saw a Buzzard flopping its wings over that office. On a little mischief bent, or thinking our classic cotemporary was sighing for a subject worthy of his pen they thought they would aid him, and so they reported it "a bald eagle." The desired effect was produced—our brother, whose intellectual armor seems bright and burnished, went off in raptures. It suggested a congenial—nay an ominous theme, and now his readers know "what he knows about"—omens! But alas! the sublimity of the production is marred when it comes to be known that instead of that "noble bird! our country's emblem" it was only a vulgar "bird o'prey." Was it an "omen?"

☞ The favor of our Edenton correspondent reached us just before going to press. He will have a hearing next week.

☞ A "flock of pretty girls" visited the Economist office the other day and the Editor is happy! Our Devil raises the question: Who did they call to see—the young publisher or the old editor?

☞ We have missed, for some days, the ever genial and pleasant face of our friend Capt. W. A. HAREY on the streets. He has been confined to his room by sickness. We hope soon to see him out and "himself again."

☞ A correspondent from Hertford informs us that several new residences are about being erected in that pretty village. The Methodist Quarterly Conference was held there on the 10th and 11th. Keep us posted.

☞ We opine there are several young men (?) hereabout who can sympathise with disconsolate "Josiah"—see our correspondence department. They love—ardently, passionately, no doubt, but over topping all is their love of tobacco! JOSIAH'S missive points a moral if it don't adorn a tale!

☞ The bad condition of the Bridge over the creek on the public road leading down the county, is causing general complaint. It has been impassable for several weeks. Learning that Commissioner UNDERWOOD was censured for the delay we personally called his attention to it. He informed us that the matter was beyond his control—that could he had his way it would have been repaired at once.

LOCAL PORT-FOLIO.

SINKING SLOWLY.—Diseases that progress rapidly to a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded, Canker or dry rot does not blast a tree as suddenly as a stroke of lightning, but unless arrested it destroys it as certainly; and in like manner chronic debility, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is as sure to sap the springs of life eventually as any acute disease, if not checked by invigorating medication. There is something inexpressibly touching in the spectacle of premature decay. Languor, pallor, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distaste for exertion, are its ordinary symptoms, and they should be promptly met by a tonic treatment. The best invigorant and exhilerant that can be administered in a case of this kind is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The stimulating principle of the preparation rouses the dormant energies of the system, and the strengthening and regulating properties give a permanent and healthful impulse to the vital forces thus brought into play. The failing appetite is re-awakened, the process of digestion and assimilation are quickened, the quality of the blood is improved, the secretions become more natural, and every organ that contributes to the nourishment of the body undergoes salutary change. By these means the repair of the physical structure is effected and its health and vigor restored. In no class of diseases has the beneficent operation of the Bitters been more marked and striking than in those characterized by general debility and nervous prostration. Ladies afflicted with those ailments find in this most wholesome of all tonics and correctives the safest and surest means of relief. It is strong to restore and powerless to injure. Such is the uniform testimony of crowds of witnesses."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A WANT NEVER BEFORE SUPPLIED.—In the South where Liver Complaint and Bilious diseases prevail to so great an extent, there has long been felt the need of a medicine that would act specifically and promptly on the Liver, restoring it to its normal functions, and at the same time be safe from after effects, and yet so simple that it might be used by any one. FOUTZ'S
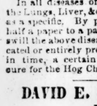
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.



In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

AGRICULTURAL, HORTICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC MATTERS.

Knowledge Required in Farming.

There are many who look upon farming as rather a small business, who think that its successful prosecution requires only a little common sense—just enough to prompt the hardy worker to seek shelter in a rain storm, and a very little knowledge, just sufficient to count a flock of sheep, or read a political newspaper. The opinion was once more general than now, for the world is growing wise, yet at the present time it is entertained by many. It is an old and true saying, that "honor and shame from no condition rise," that honor is only acquired by acting well our part in whatever situation you may be placed. A man of ability and knowledge who devoted all his energies to his business will make it honorable and profitable no matter how insignificant that business may at first seem.

There is no business requiring such requirements, so much knowledge, so much good judgment and commercial ability combined, as is necessary for the thoroughly accomplished farmer. He stands first among the manufacturers of the land, he makes the wheat and corn, the beef and mutton and pork, the wool and flax; and manufactures from the earth, the air, the water, nearly all that we eat and wear; and this is not only done by farmers as a class, but almost every one produces many if not all of these articles.

The manufacturer usually confines his labors to the production of one article, but the farmer is by necessity compelled to make many. If he would make grain he must also make beef or butter and cheese, or mutton and wool. Hence the necessity of extensive knowledge. It is an easy matter for the manufacturer to ascertain how much wool will make a yard of cloth of a certain description, and what it will cost; but it is not so easy for the farmer to ascertain how much grass or hay or grain will make a pound of wool. The manufacturer can test a new machine and ascertain by a few simple trials whether it will manufacture the desired article cheaper or better than the old one; but to ascertain how a pound of beef can be made the cheapest, what machine will convert hay into rich cheese in the cheapest and best manner, is a matter requiring a good deal more care and skill.

Among his varied acquirements, the farmer should posses a knowledge of animal physiology, so as to be enabled to keep his stock in health and and administer proper remedies in case of sickness. Vegetable physiology, too, must no be overlooked. Every day during the growing season, the farmer performs work for the growth of his crops founded on the known laws which govern vegetable life. Entomology is a science which the farmer is compelled to study to some extent, and often much more perhaps than he desires, but the more he does so the better he is fitted to wage a successful war against thousands of destructive foes.

In addition to all this the farmer must be a merchant, for he must sell as well as manufacture. He must in some measure take advantage of the rise and fall of prices, select the best time for selling and the best market or after all his toil and anxiety he may find a poor return.

When we contemplate this subject at which we have merely glanced in all its bearings we are led to exclaim: Who is competent to this work? Heartily do we pity those who think that farming furnishes no scope for the exercise of knowledge or ability. If this opinion were entertained only by those engaged in other pursuits, it would be of no serious consequence; but we judge that many farmers have themselves imbibed such unfounded and unjust opinions in regard to their calling, and where this is the case there is an end to all improvement and all desire for improvement. A man must have a good opinion of his calling, a proper appreciation of its importance and the means and information necessary for its successful prosecution or he cannot hope to succeed.—A. J. D., in Ohio Farmer.

Manure in Liquid Form.

We wish it were possible for us to impress upon every agricultural reader of the Age, the great value and importance of having manure in liquid fertilizers, such as may readily be prepared at home, and applied with little trouble—especially to garden vegetables, strawberry beds, flower borders, etc. One of our exchanges in alluding to this matter, recommends a cheap and simple apparatus, similar to a large tub or ash hopper, which may be filled in the proportion of two bushels manure to 50 gallons according to size of hopper, of stable manure, a half bushel of poultry dropping, one peck of good top soil, half a bushel of new ashes; then set the hopper to running by pouring over the whole, hot, or cold slops, soap suds, chamber lye, and the refuse liquids of the household. In a week or two stir the compost, and run the liquor through again. After extracting as (you may think) all the virtues of the contents, the latter may be used for mixtures with other compost, or applied immediately as a fertilizer, and will prove equal if not superior, to almost any fertilizer you can procure.

In applying this liquid manure, if very strong, dilute with an equal quantity of rain water, or mix with good earth, at the rate of two or three gallons to the square yard. Stir the soil around your plants, and apply this saturated earth as you would use guano or superphosphate; or pour the diluted liquid moderately over the stirred soil, some little distance from the stem of your plant, so that the roots may find and appropriate it.—Late in the evening or just after a rain, is a good time to make this application; and it may be continued at short intervals throughout the entire growing season, with very great marked benefit.—Our Home Journal.

THE HOG PEN.—Hogs are excellent animals for manufacturing manure, if they are furnished with the raw material, as peat earth, straw, weeds, &c., and a suitable place for conducting the process. The compost of their formation are among the cheapest and the best that are used upon the farm. The slops of the kitchen, the weeds of the garden, the refuse fruits of the orchard, and the offal of the farm are readily converted by the swinish laborers, into meat or manure. Hogs are profitable laborers, and should be employed to as great an extent upon the farms as the proprietor's circumstances will permit.

A Rural Carolinian correspondent gives the following, as the best method of putting up hams, to prevent skippers: "Kill the hogs in time to have the meat cured and smoked by the 1st of March, at that time take the hams and rub the flesh part well in oak ashes, leached and pack away in barrels or troughs, and the skippers will not disturb them. Since I have adopted the above plan, I have never had a skipper in my meat."

THE SHEEP FOLD.—May be made an abundant source of fertility to the farm. Economy in its management consists in giving abundance of litter, repeated at short intervals, sufficient, to absorb the urine, prevent washing exhalations, and secure health to the flock—and in applying the dung in its recent or unfermented state.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalists and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where; and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It is one of the finest location to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2,000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $300.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Also one other tract in Pasquotank county, containing 116 acres, within one mile of the town with fine buildings, mostly cleared and in cultivation. Price $25 per acre, one half cash, balance in 12 months.

A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and Railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is a small hotel now on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3,000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3,000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Hertford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to the property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The section of country adjacent abounds in the finest yellow pine, cypress, ash, poplar, and other valuable timber. This property originally cost $15,000, and is now offered at forced sale for the low price of $8,500, $7,500, cash, and the balance in six equal instalments, six months apart each with interest.

Fishing and fishery in one county. The farm contains 600 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has out buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash balance on easy terms.

Mill seat on Sandy Hills, in Camden county, 20 miles from E. City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splended stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 300 acres of land—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $18,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the best corn farm in the State. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one third cash, balance in one and two years with interest.

Several other farms and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in splended order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 585 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price $30,000, one-third cash January 1, next, balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $16,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, bindsit on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and binding, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A tract of valuable land, containing 350 acres, with fine two-story dwelling containing 9 rooms and kitchen and cook-room. Servant's house with 3 rooms, large barns and stables, all necessary and convenient out-houses, 3 tenant-houses near town, and immediately on the River. About 100 acres of this land is in fine wood and timber, balance in a fine state of cultivation. It has 3,000 grape vines one year old, 3,500 peach, apple and dwarf pear trees, five acres in strawberries which yielded an immence profit this year, ten acres in Lawton and other rare varieties of black-berries, 15 to 20,000 young peach trees with other choice fruits too numerous to mention. This farm has a public road on one side, and the River on the other, where strangers come daily to the landings to receive the fruits and vegetables, and carry them down to Norfolk, Baltimore, Phila., or New York. The land is finely adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, and all other field crops.

The owner of this farm offers to sell in tracts, to suit purchasers, say in 50 to 100 acre tracts, and at prices ranging from 35 to $80 per acre, according to location, buildings, &c.

There is also on this farm a fine fishery, where a seine 1,000 yards long, and 20 feet deep is hauled every Spring. Herring, Shad, Rock-fish, Sturgeon and other valuable fish, are caught by thousands at every draw of the seine. And the profits are frequently large. This fishery of itself is worth nearly as much as is charged for the whole property. The terms will be liberal. This is probably the finest opportunity offered any where for a profitable advestment.

☞ Fishery has an office, and two houses for hands besides fish house. Then some 500 to 1,000 loads of best fish manure on hand, besides over 5,000 loads of compost made ready for use. This goes with the farm.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE LAND AND LUMBER COMPANY having a large amount of Real Estate of their own to dispose of, and their business having increased to such an extent, they think it prudent to decline acting further as Commission Agents for the sale of lands belonging to others. They will however be glad at all times to furnish every facility to parties coming to Elizabeth City with a desire to look at the country and make purchases if they find it to their interest to do so.

The following list of property, owned by the Company, is offered for sale on the most reasonable terms. Their object now is to acquire a larger monied capital for the purpose of further developing their unimproved lands and carrying out their original design of increasing the Commerce and General Trade of Elizabeth City.

As there are others in the Commission Business, parties are referred to their advertisement for further information.

ELIZABETH CITY.

The following desirable list of Properties in Elizabeth City are offered at very reduced prices for cash or on time payments at rates which make any of them excellent investments for capitalists. We feel confident that this City is destined to become a large place and property will advance rapidly. Emigration is now tending Southernward and the feeling is in universal favor toward Elizabeth City.

A large two-story dwelling known as the Parsonage, with fine double Piazza front and back, large out kitchen, stables, carriage house, with 17 acres of ground well enclosed. This ground is all within the corporation of the City, and is well situated to lay out in building lots and make out of it ten fold the price asked for it.

A two-story dwelling containing ten rooms, 10,000 gallon cistern and all necessary out-houses, with large lot. Situated on Main Street. A Vacant Lot no better located and not so large as this was sold recently for $1600 cash.

A large brick store house and wharf situate on Water street; in E. City, comprising three lots with 400 feet of water front permanently wharfed for the accommodation of large vessels. There is erected on these lots a large two-story brick building, 50 by 80 feet, well fitted up for a wholesale or retail trade at present occupied by the "Yankee Store."

The Wharf Lots are 200ft deep and will be sold to any size desired along the River. Among them are some most eligible situations for Store Houses, Mills and Manufactories of any kind as there is a fine harbor immediately in front of them, having 30ft of water, sufficient for vessels of any capacity. Along Pennsylvania Avenue are offered some of the finest and choicest lots, for dwellings in town at prices varying according to location. This will be the finest street in town, is 80 feet wide, size of Lot 100ft front by 200ft deep. There are now a number of first class residences being erected on this street. Immediately in the vicinity of these Lots the Company have erected a large Planing Mill, Sash, Blind and Door Factory at a cost of near $20,000 and also their Saw Mill at a cost of near $15,000. That now is the proper time to invest in those Lots there can be no doubt, as they will double in value in a very short time. Lots not near so good as these, are now selling in other parts of the City at more than double the price asked for these.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects. They are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequaled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the System in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist, there is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.
